

Welcome to the Olympic Peninsula.

We pride ourselves on being a safe place to live for people of all identities and there are many trans folks living happily on the peninsula.

We also recognize that not all people are aware or sensitive to trans folks. Enclosed is a list of people and resources that local trans folks have found to be safe and helpful.

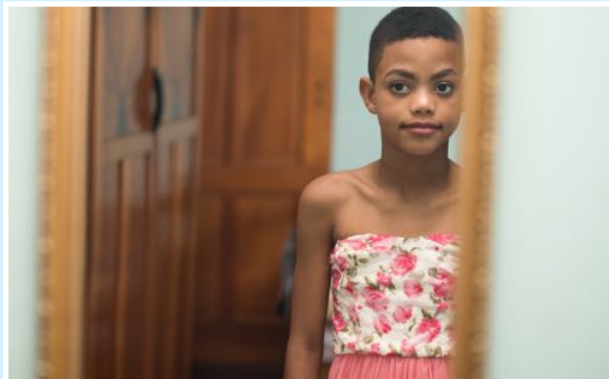

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

The Washington Law Against Discrimination (WLAD) protects trans people from violence, threats, and bullying in public school, and from discrimination based on gender expression or gender identity (actual or perceived) in:

- Public accommodations (such as restaurants, hotels, public schools)
- Housing (renting, buying, selling)
- Employment in public workplaces and private workplaces with 8+ employees
- Credit transactions (such as loans, credit cards)
- Insurance transactions (such as health insurance)

The Washington State Human Rights Commission (HRC) investigates civil rights complaints under WLAD

Transgender Resources

for the Olympic Peninsula

An all-in-one snapshot on transgender support in the Olympic Peninsula

Local trans folks collaborated to provide this local resource on doctors, therapists, support groups, annual events, and more.

Let us know if you have other resources folks should hear about- we are a sharing community
